

Vacation in Amazon Jungle

PERUVIAN ADVENTURE

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Seward, bottom picture, arrive at International Airport, loaded with souvenirs given to them by the Peruvian Indians, after three weeks in the Amazon jungle hunting and fishing. Top picture is the jungle home in which they were guests, on the Jessoria island of 12,500 acres, owned by their host, Herman Jesson.

Island Calls

A storybook experience was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Seward of Torrance, who returned Saturday from a vacation in the jungles of Peru.

The couple, he employed by the Lucky Markets here and she a teacher in the Torrance Unified School district, left about three weeks ago, aboard the Peruvian Airlines. They had a stop over in Mexico City and from there went on to Lima, Peru.

In Lima, they were met by a personal friend, Herman Jesson, producer of "I Search for Adventure" television show and a prominent member of the American Adventurers Club.

Boarding a plane, the trio flew over the Andes Mountains to Iquitos, Peru, a city and river port on the banks of the Amazon River, and the last outpost. By boat, the travelers made an all-day trip down the Amazon to the border of Ecuador and Peru, where Mr. Jesson owns a 12,500 acre island which he has named "Jessoria."

Mrs. Seward, a striking blonde, was the first white woman to set foot on the island. The Peruvian Indians were fascinated at seeing the "fair lady," who won their admiration and affection when she distributed chocolate candy bars to them. Mrs. Seward had been told to take plenty of candy bars, honey, and peanut butter, delicacies which the Indians seldom get. As a result of her gifts and kindnesses, the Searwards were showered with souvenir gifts from the Indians.

On the return trip, they spent several days in Iquitos and Lima before boarding the plane for California. Prior to their leaving, the couple was honored at a farewell patio dinner given by Mr. Seward's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Seward of Torrance. Also here to say farewell, were Mrs. Seward's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Kammerer of San Diego.
